How We Control Quality and Our Inspection Procedure:

At first, we hand over the order to two of our merchandiser and two QA people. These teams are responsible for this order. Every morning they discuss the whole status in the daily meeting with our General Manager, Merchandising.

The factory makes the sample as per final changes and comments from the buyer on the products. Our QA and merchandiser study together with approved FIT samples and the comments from the buyer. After receiving the fabrics and accessories at the factory, one of the QA and merchandiser concerning that particular order stays in the factory from morning to evening (production time) until final inspection/shipment.

We always make a pre-production meeting before we go into production. Our merchandiser and QA inspector go to the factory at the time of pre-production meeting, check the sample, pattern and final comments from the buyer and if they are satisfied then they give instruction to the factory people for a trial production.

QA inspectors evaluate trial production and then approve for bulk production. As soon as bulk production is started our QA inspector goes for inline inspection. Initially every day, then every alternate day, depends on the situation of the FTY/ production.

In the middle stage of production if rating (standard of quality) result is acceptable/good then we go for pre-final inspection. Here we check the case pack, carton quality, shipping mark, assortment, presentation etc.

After the pre-final result is acceptable we go for final inspection and if it passes we approve shipment.

Thanks
